Navy reviews physiological episodes

WASHINGTON - The Navy announced this week it is conducting a comprehensive review of the facts, circumstances and processes surrounding the recent physiological episodes involving T-45 and F/A-18 aircrew, to include how these issues have been addressed.

On April 21, Vice Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Bill Moran directed Commander, U.S. Pacific Fleet Adm. Scott Swift to lead the review and determine the composition of the review team. It is expected that at the completion of the review, Swift will be able to validate current actions and recommend additional actions, if any, that need to be taken.

In the tasking memo Moran wrote, "The seriousness in which I view these incidents is reflected in the seniority of those leading this review. They will provide a full and open accounting to our aviation community, their families and the public."

Physiological episodes occur when aircrew experience a decrease in performance due to the cabin pressure fluctuations, contamination of breathing air, or other factors in the flight environment. The Naval Aviation Enterprise and Navy leadership view PEs as the number one aviation safety priority and are taking an "unconstrained resource" approach to finding solutions.

Swift will provide the results of the review to Moran within 30 days.

Carl Vinson pilot ejects safely at sea

USS CARL VINSON - A pilot safely ejected and was quickly recovered by a helicopter assigned to Helicopter Sea Combat Squadron 4 aboard USS Carl Vinson (CVN 70) while conducting routine flight operations during a transit in the Celebes Sea.

The incident occurred as the F/A-18E assigned to Carrier Air Wing 2 was on final approach to Carl Vinson.

The incident is currently under investigation. The pilot is being assessed by the medical team aboard Carl Vinson and there are no apparent injuries at this time.

Navy destroyer open for public tours

SAN DIEGO - Arleigh Burke-class guided-missile destroyer USS Halsey (DDG 97) is scheduled to be open for public visits at Broadway Pier this Saturday and Sunday, April 29 and 30.

The visit will provide members of the public an opportunity to take a tour of the ship and talk with America's Sailors.

Public tours of the ship are scheduled for Sat., April 29 from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sun., April 30 from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Broadway Pier is located at the intersection of Broadway and North Harbor Drive in downtown San Diego.

Named in honor of Fleet Adm. William Frederick "Bull" Halsey Jr., USS Halsey is homeported in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii and is the 47th ship in the Arleigh Burke class of Aegis guided missile destroyers. These highly-capable, multi-mission ships can conduct a variety of operations, from peacetime presence and crisis management to sea control and power projection, in support of National Military Strategy.

Visitor safety and security guidelines:

Visitors will board on a first come, first served basis, and may have to wait in line during peak hours.

Visitors should also expect security screenings prior to boarding. When touring the ship, visitors are encouraged to bring as few items as possible and flat-heeled, closed-toe shoes are recommended. High-heel shoes, flip-flops and improper attire (i.e. bathing suits) are not permitted.

The ship is not handicapped accessible and visitors must be in good physical condition to walk safely about the ship, moving up and down steep ladders (stairways). Touring the ship may not be appropriate for small children or those with medical conditions that impede mobility.

All visitors 18 years of age and older are required to show a valid U.S. state/federal government issued photo identification card.

Airmen honor fallen military working dogs, handlers

by Air Force Senior Airman Cynthia A. Innocenti

AL UDEID AIR BASE, Qatar - For some, having a canine companion is like having a tail-wagging best friend. For the Air Force military working dog handlers with the 379th Expeditionary Security Forces Squadron, it means having another wingman that they honor like their human counterparts.

Personnel here did just that, commemorating fallen military working dogs and military working dog handlers with a remembrance ceremony followed by a three-mile ruck march April 20.

"Not everyone realizes that the dogs we train are not our pets. They are government assets, just like airmen. And because they are government assets, they are exposed to the same dangers we are, if not more," said Air Force Senior Airman Noah Medor, a dog handler with the 379th Expeditionary Security Forces Squadron.

"The dogs may be our wingmen, but they are different than a normal wingman," said Medor.

Medor said that as a dog handler he is always building a bond between him and his canine partner, just like the relationships he strengthens with his co-workers and fellow airmen, except his canine wingman has heightened senses.

"Emotions travel down leash is a common saying in the military working dog community; my dog knows when I come in to work angry or frustrated and in turn it shows in his training," Medor said. "We feed off of each other's energy, so it is important that I keep a steady attitude. I wouldn't want my dog's behavior to reflect poorly upon my training."

Air Force Staff Sgt. Steven Watkins, also a military working dog handler, explained that one of the challenges with this is they are operating 24/7.

"We work long shifts, and when we are not working we are training, and when we are not training we are checking up on our dogs," Watkins said. "We don't just come in to work and play with dogs; we make a difference in the lives of our fellow service members."

Military working dogs are an integral part of the Air Force. The result of a lack of obedience or bad training could be a matter of life and death.

"The dogs are here to find explosives and act as a psychological deterrent," Watkins said. "I have personally seen the result of good training save a member's life from an explosive."

Medor and his comrades wanted to share the opportunity to honor fallen military working dogs and handlers.

The base-wide event was considered a success with over 65 members who participated.

"Rucking is a great way to commemorate those who have given everything to their military service," said Air Force Tech. Sgt. Jacop Parker, the unit's kennel master. "It was challenging for both the handler wearing a 60-pound ruck sack and the dog running alongside their handler."

"All in all it is always a good day when you have your dog with you," Watkins said.

VCNO announces Shore Sailor of the Year

by MC3 Taylor N. Stinson

WASHINGTON - Vice CNO Adm. Bill Moran announced the 2016 Shore Sailor of the Year during a ceremony held at the Pentagon April 20. Moran announced Logistics Specialist 1st Class Amber Wilson, Manpower, Personnel, Training, and Education Sailor of the Year, as this year's winner.

Wilson also received a Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal at the ceremony and will be meritoriously advanced to chief petty officer later this year.

Alongside Wilson was Naval Aircrewmen (Avionics) 1st Class David Matuska, Personnel Specialist 1st Class Aliscia Malone, Hospital Corpsman 1st Class Kenneth D. Terrell, and Builder 1st Class Thomas Camara; who were also awarded the Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal during the ceremony.

"This experience of being board selected and being through that grinder, there's no doubt that they've earned the right to be proud and very confident about themselves," said Moran. "My wish for each of them is that they depart here a better Sailor, a better human being, and a better leader, having learned from each other in this process."

Wilson thanked the people along the way who helped her down her path. "I'd like to thank all the people that I work for, the people that work for me, the people I work with, and my recruits," said Wilson. "They're very testing at times but it's definitely challenged me for the better and I'm hoping that it will help me become a better chief petty officer."

Adm. Elmo Zumwalt initiated the Sailor of the Year program in 1972 to recognize outstanding Atlantic and Pacific Fleet Sailors.

U.S. stands by Afghan people after Taliban's heinous acts, Mattis says

"THESE PEOPLE HAVE NO RELIGIOUS FOUNDATION. THEY ARE NOT DEVOUT ANYTHING, AND IT SHOWS," SAID JIM MATTIS, DEFENSE SECRETARY.

by Terri Moon Cronk

WASHINGTON - During a visit to the headquarters of NATO's Resolute Support mission in the Afghan capital of Kabul April 24, Defense Secretary Jim Mattis had stern words for the April 21 Taliban attack on an Afghan military base and mosque, in which more than 100 people were killed.

The secretary spoke at a news conference alongside Army Gen. John W. Nicholson, commander of the Resolute Support mission and of U.S. forces in Afghanistan.

"As if we needed a reminder of the type of enemy we're up against, the killing of Afghan citizens and soldiers -- protectors of the people -- just as they were coming out of a mosque, a house of worship, it certainly characterizes this fight for exactly what it is," Mattis said. "These people have no religious foundation. They are not devout anything, and it shows why we stand with the people of this country against such heinous acts perpetrated by this barbaric enemy and what they do."

The secretary said he had met earlier with Afghan President Ashraf Ghani and thanked him for his leadership in the midst of difficult times and for the inclusive approach of this unity government.

"We discussed his initiative to make the government … more responsive to all of the Afghan people, and we all recognize the challenges to this government of that effort presented by enemies of the Afghan people who refused to renounce violence," Mattis said.

The secretary pointed out that President Donald J. Trump has directed a review of U.S. policy in Afghanistan. "This dictates an ongoing dialogue with Afghanistan's leadership," he said, "and that's why I came here: to get with President Ghani and his ministers and hear directly and at length from … General Nicholson to provide my best assessment and advice as we go forward."

That advice, he added, will go not only to the president, but also to the NATO secretary general and all the troop-contributing nations with which the U.S.coordinates and collaborates.

The teamwork between the U.S. and Afghan governments, their diplomats and their international military contingents has achieved high levels of partnership, the secretary said. "In a word, I find it impressive," he said.

The review in Washington of the Afghanistan mission is a dialogue that includes Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, the president and his staff in the White House, and "I'd say we're under no illusions about the challenges associated with this mission," Mattis said

2017 will be another tough year for the Afghan security forces and the international troops who will continue to stand shoulder to shoulder with Afghanistan and against those who seek to undermine the nation's legitimate government, Mattis said. He called on the Taliban to work honestly for a positive future for the Afghan people.

"They need only to renounce violence and reject terrorism," he added. "It's a pretty low standard to join the political process."

Pilot program tests Wi-Fi in air hangars to improve aircraft readiness

by Mathuel Browne

MCB QUANTICO, Va. - The Marine Corps is investing in secure, wireless connectivity inside aviation hangars that will give maintenance crewmembers continual access to manuals, parts, and information for improved aircraft readiness.

Marine Corps Systems Command and Headquarters Marine Corps Command, Control, Communication and Computers, started Wi-Fi installation in air hangers aboard MCAS New River, N.C. in January 2017. The pilot program is intended to decrease time needed to order and receive parts, while increasing the range of access Marines have to online resources. By enabling access to areas without

Navy accepts delivery of USNS Yuma

MOBILE, Ala. - The Navy accepted delivery of its eighth Expeditionary Fast Transport (EPF) vessel, USNS Yuma (EPF 8) April 21.

EPFs are shallow draft, all aluminum, commercial-based catamarans capable of intra-theater personnel and cargo transport, that provide combatant commanders high-speed sealift mobility. EPFs enable rapid projection and agile maneuver and transport of personnel, equipment and supplies over operational distances and offer access to harsh and degraded offload points.

"EPFs have performed exceptionally in the fleet, and we continue to deliver highly capable ships that can successfully meet a wide range of missions," said Capt. Henry Stevens, Strategic and Theater Sealift program manager, Program Executive Office (PEO) Ships. "The delivery of Yuma will provide continued warfighting capabilities to our fleet as these ships continue to conduct operations around the globe."

As versatile, non-combatant vessels, EPFs provide increased operational flexibility for a wide range of activities including maneuver and sustainment, relief operations, and flexible logistics support. These vessels can interface with roll-on/roll-off discharge facilities and are capable of on/off-loading a combat-loaded Abrams Main Battle Tank. The EPFs include a flight deck to support day and night aircraft launch and recovery operations and airline-style seating for 312 embarked forces with fixed berthing for 104. USNS Yuma will be owned and operated by the Military Sealift Command.

USNS Yuma was constructed by Austal USA which is currently under contract for the construction of four additional EPFs. A christening ceremony is scheduled for City of Bismarck (EPF 9) next month with a keel laying ceremony planned for Burlington (EPF 10) early this summer. EPFs 11 and 12 were awarded in September 2016 and are currently in the early stages of production.

As one of the Defense Department's largest acquisition organizations, PEO Ships is responsible for executing the development and procurement of all destroyers, amphibious ships, special mission and support ships, and special warfare craft.

Navy installations underway with transitioning to biometric ID system to enhance base security

WASHINGTON - In 2015 Navy installations began transitioning to the Defense Biometric Identification System (DBIDS) to enhance base access control security.

On April 17, the Navy began transitioning all vendors, contractors, sub-contractors, suppliers and service providers seeking base access who currently use or qualify for the Navy Commercial Access Control System (NCACS) from NCACS to DBIDS. The transition applies to installations in the continental United States, Hawaii and Guam.

The transition that is currently underway from NCACS to DBIDS applies to all eligible vendors, contractors, sub-contractors, suppliers, and service providers. Those individuals with Department of Defense (DoD) approved sponsorship to conduct business with the Navy and/or tenant commands aboard a Navy installation, who are not eligible for a common access card (CAC) also may apply for a DBIDS card.

Current NCACS cardholders will have until July 15 to obtain a DBIDS credential at the local base Visitor Control Center. NCACS cards will no longer be accepted after July 15. Contractors, sub-contractors, vendors and suppliers who do not have an NCACS card will have up to 180 days to obtain their DBIDS credential.

For information on how to obtain a DBIDS credential, go to www.cnic.navy.mil/om/dbids.html.

DBIDS increases installation security and communications by receiving frequent database updates on changes to personnel/credential status, law enforcement warrants, lost/stolen cards, and force protection conditions. The system provides a continuous vetting anytime the DBIDS card is scanned at an installation entry point.

For additional questions, please contact the local base Visitor Control Center.

wired networking capabilities, Marines can execute aircraft maintenance tasks more timely and efficiently.

"Currently, there are not enough Ethernet ports in air hangars for all crew members to use," said Joni Ong, MCEN-N Wireless project officer for Marine Corps Network and Infrastructure Services at MCSC. "Users generally have to work offline when away from the ports, slowing the maintenance process for ordering parts, taking electronic notes, updating essential manuals and key tasks."

The wireless proof of concept will equip eight MCAS New River hangers with secure, high-speed access to the Marine Corps Enterprise Network – the Corps' primary network. This will give Marines all the capabilities of the network, such as email, file sharing and access to secure websites.

"When you are working on wireless, it does not change the work that you need to do, just where you can do it," said Ong. "Ultimately, Marines will have access to everything they would have if connected to an ethernet connection."

MCAS New River was chosen as the first location for the Proof of Concept because of a requirement for increased flightline readiness to support Marine Aircraft Group 29, or MAG-29, a Marine Corps aviation unit based at New River.

HQMC C4 embraced the request as a viable option and took the lead to determine the policy and resourcing for the project. MCSC is responsible for the acquisition and installation of the system.

"A big reason that we wanted to support this project was to ensure that we are continually increasing Marine Corps readiness," said Capt. Mary Beth Bloom, lead action officer for wireless at HQMC C4. "It was during a Marine aviation conference last year that MAG-29 shared a brief highlighting that Wi-Fi internet is a smart capability to increase speed and accuracy when maintaining aircrafts."

Security has been a primary concern that has kept Marine Corps aviators from adopting wireless internet as a standard. With MCEN, only Marines with credentials have access the network.

"Setting up wireless internet has always brought on the idea of security vulnerabilities," said Bloom. "With our current security, we are able to use certificates authentication as a level of protection when verifying who the users are. We can also restrict laptops to a specific wireless network in order to prevent information from leaving the hangar."

Maintenance crew members will also receive rugged laptops, called Portable Electronic Maintenance Aids. These unclassified government devices are fielded by the Naval Air Systems Command and are preinstalled with electronic technical manuals and diagnostic applications crew members need to get working and submit repair requests.

Wi-Fi installation at MCAS New River is scheduled for completion by summer 2017. Lessons learned from the Proof of Concept will assist in obtaining additional funding for implementation at more air stations as well as logistics and maintenance units. An additional 20 air and logistics units are lined up for wireless installation, with the goal of making Wi-Fi an enterprise solution.

"Ultimately, there are a lot of crew members who would benefit from this capability," said Ong. "We are taking incremental steps to ensure that Wi-Fi will be an enterprise solution across the Corps aviation community."

Modernization initiative reduces processing time, saves future taxpayer dollars

WASHINGTON — The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) recently started digitizing older, inactive paper records, which will save taxpayer dollars through reduced, leased office-space that currently houses these records.

"This is just one of the ways in which we are modernizing our capabilities, not only to be more responsive to Veterans and their families, but also to be good stewards of taxpayer dollars," said VA's Acting Under Secretary for Benefits Thomas Murphy.

This new "paper-extraction" process ensures that when a claim is filed, the Veteran's electronic record is already available in VA's computer systems, reducing processing time for benefit claims from Veterans and their survivors.

In the past, when a Veteran filed a new or supplemental claim, if a medical condition had worsened, the retired paper files were boxed and shipped to a central site to scan into VA's systems before work would begin on the new claim.

Nearly 2 million inactive files were housed in 33 regional offices across the country before the change. As of April 14, more than 500,000 files have been collected from eight regional offices for scanning. Once the records have been digitized, VA will archive and store them in less expensive long-term storage for safekeeping.

The agency plans to remove and scan paper claim records from the remaining regional offices by the end of 2018.

"This modernization initiative seeks to eliminate delays caused by shipping and digital conversion," said Bradley Houston, director of VA's Office of Business Process Integration, which oversees the initiative. "It will give claims processors nationwide the ability to instantly access millions of inactive claim records when needed."

Over the past five years, VA has made concerted efforts to modernize the way it processes compensation and pension claims. Since 2012, 397 million records - consisting of 2.6 billion images - have been scanned, indexed and uploaded into the agency's electronic-claims processing system, Veterans Benefits Management System.

In fiscal 2016, VA provided compensation and pension benefits to more than 5.1 million Veterans and family members, totaling over $80 billion.

Social Security Matters: Ask Rusty - Ex-spouse benefits - When you don't get

by Russell Gloor

Dear Rusty: I'm confused about where I stand with Social Security. I've been divorced twice. First husband is 79; I was married to him for 10 years. He is remarried and collecting Social Security. Second husband is 69; I was married to him for 33 years. He's not remarried and is still actively working. I'm not sure if he collects yet. Both husbands were professionals who had very high incomes. I'm 75 and have been collecting Social Security from the age of 63 based on 21 active years of teaching in the city school system, and my Social Security benefit is about $1,334. I have been working part time ever since but not making more than around $5,000 a year. I've been to my local Social Security office three times and have been told each time that I can't collect any of my ex-spouses' Social Security until they die. Is this correct information? Signed: Confused

Dear Confused: As an ex-spouse you are eligible for spousal benefits if you meet certain criteria, which include being at least 62 years of age, not currently married, married to your ex for at least 10 years (and divorced at least 2 if the other spouse is eligible for Social Security but not yet collecting). However in order for you to collect, your benefit amount as an ex-spouse must be greater than the benefit you are already receiving on your own work record.

The benefit you are entitled to as an ex-spouse is 50 percent of either of your ex-husbands' Primary Insurance Amount (or PIA), the amount they were entitled to at their full retirement age. While both of your ex-husbands may be (or may have been) high-income professionals, they only paid Social Security FICA taxes on whatever the payroll tax limit was for each year in their respective careers ($127,200 in 2017 but less in preceding years). There is also a maximum PIA amount which beneficiaries can earn in retirement benefits. For 2017 that maximum is $2,687, but it was less in previous years. So let's explore the possibilities:

Husband number 1 is now 79 years old, was a high-earner and was born in 1938. Assuming he contributed the maximum amount to Social Security over his career, his PIA at his full retirement age of 65 years and 2 months in 2003 could not have been higher than about $2,450. As his ex-spouse (or spouse) you would be entitled to 50 percent of his PIA, or about $1,225.

Husband number 2 is now 69 years old, also a high-earner, and was born in 1948. Again assuming he contributed the maximum amount to Social Security over his career, his PIA at his full retirement age of 66 in 2014 could not have been higher than $2,533. As his ex-spouse (or spouse) you would be entitled to 50 percent of his PIA, or about $1,266.

Since your Social Security monthly benefit on your own work record is $1,334, and since that is more than 50 percent of both ex-husbands' PIA, you cannot get a "spousal boost" from their Social Security record. The reason Social Security said that you cannot collect anything until one of your ex-husbands die is because as a surviving ex-spouse (or spouse) you are entitled to 100 percent of either the deceased PIA or, if they waited beyond their full retirement age to start benefits whatever they were collecting (or were eligible to collect) upon their death. And obviously 100 percent of either ex-spouse's benefit would be more than your benefit from your own work record.

Navy accepting STA-21 applications

The Seaman-To-Admiral (STA-21) commissioning program, which provides an opportunity for qualified Sailors to receive college educations and navy commissions, is soliciting applications for fiscal year 2018, as announced in NAVADMIN 094/17 April 18.

The deadline for submitting application packages is July 1.

"STA-21 is a full-time, undergraduate education and commissioning program open to enlisted personnel of all pay grades and ratings to receive a top-notch college education and become commissioned officers," said Cathy Kempf, head of Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC) program and STA-21 selection and placement, at Naval Service Training Command's (NSTC) Officer Development (OD) directorate in Pensacola, Florida.

According to Mark Gough, deputy director of the NSTC's OD directorate, the STA-21 program is one of the best officer commissioning programs the Navy has to offer.

"STA-21 pays up to $10,000 per year for college costs such as tuition, books and fees," said Gough. "All the while, Sailors draw their full pay and allowances for their current pay grade. Under the STA-21 program, Sailors have 36 months, including summer semesters, to complete their Baccalaureate degree requirements."

All STA-21 officer candidates attend the Naval Science Institute (NSI) course at Officer Training Command Newport (OTCN), Naval Station Newport, Rhode Island, prior to beginning college studies at an NROTC affiliated college or university.

NSI is an eight-week course of intense officer preparation and indoctrination. Course enrollment is timed to allow college entrance during summer or fall semesters/quarters after selection.

The STA-21 program benefits Sailors as well as the Navy. The average candidate has at least two years and in most cases more than four years of observed performance which assists in the process of selecting the most qualified Sailors to receive a commission.

Additionally, STA-21 candidates are on average older than most midshipmen, bringing a maturity directly reflected in the more than 85 percent completion rate STA-21 program candidates boast.

Additionally, many Sailors involved in the STA-21 program already have some college credit and some candidates have enough credits to finish ahead of the three years allotted to earn a degree.

All of these factors - proven performance for better selection, maturity for higher completion rates, and previous college credit - save the Navy money while producing top-quality experienced Naval officers.

According to NAVADMIN 094/18, the following target options and core are open for application for the FY-18 Selection Board: Surface Warfare (SWO), Nuclear (Surface/Sub), Special Warfare, Explosive Ordnance Disposal, Naval Flight Officer, Pilot, Civil Engineering Corps, Nurse Corps, and Information Professional.

The following target options have zero select opportunity for FY-18: Human Resources, Intelligence, Information Warfare, Surface Warfare Engineering (SWO/ED), Medical Corps, Supply Corps, Oceanography, Surface Warfare Officer/Information Professional (SWO/IP), and SWO/OCEANO.

The Nuclear (Surface/Sub) target option is now open to Sailors who are serving in the fleet and hold an active nuclear Navy enlisted classification (335X, 336X, 338X, or 339X). This option is a change to the previous year's eligibility policy. Sailors who are serving as a staff member or student in the Navy Nuclear Power Training pipeline are also eligible, as they have been in previous years. All applicants must be able to begin their first day of class in the first semester of their course work prior to commencing their eighth year of service. See the Nuclear Program Authorization (PA150A) dated December 2015 for more specific information and all other requirements to apply for the program. Additionally, all applicants must receive conditional release, per NAVADMIN 070/13, from the Nuclear Enlisted Community Manager (OPNAV N133D).

In the STA-21 program, as it is in many competitive selection processes, it is often a candidate's extra efforts which can result in selection.

"Do your best in all your endeavors, college courses, work performance, community involvement, and have superior performances on your Physical Fitness Assessments (PFA). With so many great sailors to choose from, selection boards often look for the tie breakers or the indicators of extra effort, potential and desire, in this regard the STA-21 program is no exception," Kempf said. "As always, performance is the number one criteria. When given the chance to lead, take it. No matter how small the opportunity, step up and lead people, and lead them well, while also attending to your physical, academic, and professional preparedness."

Reporting seniors who feel they have a sailor with the potential to be selected by STA-21 should comment on their leadership skills and potential in their performance evaluations early in their career. These comments are highly regarded by the boards, even in junior Sailors.

Kempf reminded all Sailors that are applying for STA-21 to have an endorsing letter from their commanding officers and to include their Scholastic Aptitude Test/American College Test (SAT/ACT) scores in their packages.

This year's NAVADMIN includes numbers from last year. It states of the 342 applications received for FY-17, only 302 were board eligible. A total of 50 were selected to participate in the FY-17 STA-21 program. Each year, packages are not considered due to non-qualifying SAT/ACT test scores, missing commanding officer (CO) endorsement/recommendation, recent non-judicial punishment, missing PFA cycles, missing or illegible submission of documents, and not meeting program age or PFA requirements.

NAVADMIN 094/17 also states minimum eligibility requirements must be met before submitting an application. Applications should be mailed only when fully completed.

Pacific Partnership 2017 kicks off cooperative health engagement in Malaysia

by Petty Officer 2nd Class Chelsea Milburn

Vans filled with medical personnel in more than 10 different uniforms, supply trucks as tall as the houses they parked next to and hundreds of smiling and wide-eyed locals gathered in the narrow streets of Kampung Suba Buan.

The heat and humidity rose from the ground as the 35 American, Japanese, Australian and Malaysian medical service members worked together to transform an empty pavilion into a makeshift clinic and presentation room in slightly more than an hour.

Crowds of patients began lining up at a registration table manned by two to three personnel, kicking off the first day of Pacific Partnership 2017 cooperative health engagements (CHE) in Malaysia April 19.

Pacific Partnership is the largest annual multilateral humanitarian assistance and disaster relief preparedness mission conducted in the Indo-Asia-Pacific and aims to enhance regional coordination in areas such as medical readiness and preparedness for manmade and natural disasters. U.S. Navy photo by MC2 Chelsea Troy Milburn

During the day, the combined medical team worked together to see a total of 396 patients in medical, dental, and optometry, as well as provide classes on nutrition and cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

"The best part of the CHE is the interactions that let you see how everyone comes together to really make a difference," said Pacific Partnership 2017 Malaysia Medical Officer in Charge Cmdr. Evangeline Allen. "For example, there was a 75-year old woman waiting to be seen in optometry, and everyone on the medical side, as well as the other patients waiting, all helped to get her to the front of the line so she wouldn't miss her bus. When our optometrist put those glasses on her face, she just lit up. It's very rewarding seeing the good that comes out of all of us working together."

U.S. Army Sgt. Jorge Laguna, the mission's optometry technician, also had rewarding experiences working with such a diverse team.

"You get something from everybody you work with," said Laguna. "I got to eat lunch with the Malaysian guys and really get to know them and learn about their culture, and that was probably my favorite part of the day."

Laguna said that the best part of working with Pacific Partnership isn't what he does day to day, but what he knows he'll return with at the end of the mission. "Things like this change you," he explained. "You go back home and you see things differently; for the better."After an hour of setup and seven hours of seeing as many patients as possible in the steaming, 90-plus degree heat, the work and weather cooled off together in the last hour of the workday with cool, heavy, and much-appreciated rain.Now in its 12th year, Pacific Partnership continues as the largest annual multilateral humanitarian assistance and disaster relief preparedness mission conducted in the Indo-Asia-Pacific and aims to enhance regional coordination in areas such as medical readiness and preparedness for manmade and natural disasters.

NHCP Sailor chosen to be MSC officer

by Petty Officer 2nd Class Yasmine T. Muhammad

Naval Hospital Camp Pendleton's own Petty Officer 1st Class Michael Ahner, NHCP's Pharmacy Department leading petty officer, was recently selected to participate in the Navy's Medical Service Corps In-service Procurement Program.

The MSC-IPP allows enlisted sailors interested in several medical professions to transition to officer after completing the required prerequisites for their programs.

Once prerequisite classes are completed and packages have been submitted, if selected, the sailor will go to a college of choice and complete their degree in their field. After completing the degree, sailors will come back into the Navy as an O-1 or an O-3, depending on the program.

Ahner, who was selected for the pharmacy program, has a few more classes to complete before heading to college in North Carolina but says he is excited for the road ahead.

"I have been going to school after hours for about five years now to get all of my prerequisites done," said Ahner. "I am ecstatic that although all of my hard work is leading to more hard work, it will all pay off in the end."

Because of his daily hard-work and dedication to his job, it did not come as a surprise to fellow staff members or leadership that Ahner was selected.

"HM1 Ahner demonstrates a passion for patient care, leadership ability, and commitment to lifelong learning, which are the hallmarks of success as a Medical Service Corps officer," said Cmdr. Traci Hindman, NHCP's director of clinical support services, who assisted Ahner in perfecting his package. "I look forward to serving with him following his completion of pharmacy school and he will be an asset to Navy Medicine and the Navy Pharmacy family."

Ahner said that becoming a pharmacy officer has been a goal of his since he joined in 2003. "I always wanted to be a pharmacist so I was really lucky after A-school that I got to pick pharmacy as a specialty. Being able to go to school and become a pharmacist was my ultimate goal" he said. "I think it's the greatest program in the Navy and I'm just happy that I'm almost there."

Ahner will be leaving NHCP in a few months to begin his new journey. Good luck and congratulations.

Late blooming: You can't rush military transition

by Lisa Smith Molinari

A few days ago, I made my usual school drop off, then took our two-year-old lab Moby on his regular morning walk. While we trudged around the local reservoir, I listened to my latest audio book and focused my eyes on the path, dodging the many goose deposits.

At some point, I managed to lift my head and look out toward the sea. The sight stopped me in my tracks.

While the rest of the hemisphere had been raving for weeks about balmy temps, sprouting buds, and baby animals, here in New England I've been straight-jacketed into a ridiculous full-length down coat since last October. The kind I swore I'd never buy because it makes me look like the Stay Puft Marshmallow man.

Moby stood dripping, patiently waiting for me to throw his raggedy tennis ball into the water again, while I paused to take in the scene before me.

It was finally, undoubtedly, splendidly … spring.

Although the grass seemed a little greener that morning, there had been no obvious signs. No happy tulips, no ducklings beating to stay in line with their mothers, no tender chartreuse shoots on the trees. The air was still a chilly 44 degrees, and despite Moby's willingness to swim in it, the water was frigid. Beyond the path, the tall reeds between the reservoir and the beach appeared pale, brittle and lifeless. And, there was no foliage on the prickly rose hips lining the coastline.

But I saw that just beyond the dunes, the ocean was glimmering. Juxtaposed against the pale morning sky and the seemingly dormant landscape, the sea was a beautiful blanket of flashing silver sequins.

Suddenly, the day seemed fresh and full of promise. Even Moby's slimy tennis ball appeared a brighter shade of yellow, as I tossed it into the clear, cold water.

I continued down the path with a new spring in my step, as I remembered the long winter our family had endured. It had been particularly challenging, because my husband Francis had just retired from the Navy after 28 years and was transitioning to a civilian career.

the meat and potatoes of life

Based upon the positive responses Francis received from various hiring managers, we thought he'd get a job before his terminal leave was over on November 1st. But come winter, we realized that the transition would take longer than we had expected.

Not wanting to give up on his dream of working in corporate global security, Francis continued to beat the pavement, networking relentlessly and applying for a wide range of positions in his field. In the meantime, we rearranged our finances to adapt to military retirement pay.

That winter, as I tromped, the icy local dog walking paths each morning with Moby, bundled in my down coat, I pushed away fears of long-term unemployment and prayed for good news. The bright civilian future we had imagined appeared dim and foggy.

"You're overqualified," Francis heard from two companies. "We need someone with corporate experience," others said. All those years of military service, working on missions that made a real difference in the world … was it all coming down to this?

"Every company wants to help the military, until you ask them to help the military" one mentor astutely pointed out.

Finally, after many months of networking, phone calls, meetings and interviews, Francis landed the corporate job he was looking for all along, but it is located out of state and requires us to live apart while our daughter Lilly finishes high school. As a military family accustomed to the "geobachelor" lifestyle, we've simply adapted to this new routine.

It hasn't been easy, but we realize that our transition is not complete — we are still cultivating our future. Just like spring in New England, the transition from military to civilian life cannot be rushed. Even if we can't yet see them, the buds of our new life are there, growing invisibly under the surface. Like the persistent little snowdrop that I noticed flowering beside the reservoir path that chilly spring morning, the seeds we are sowing will bloom brightly in due time.

As long as we keep our sights focused on the hopeful, glimmering horizon.

Applications

consist of three officers; the applicant's commanding officer may not be a board member and should not submit an interview appraisal sheet. The commanding officer's personal interview should be conducted only after the application is complete and the officer interview board has submitted their appraisals. The full picture of an applicant's academic and officer potential can only be determined by reviewing the SAT/ACT scores, high school/college transcripts, and a completed application package.

Kempf echoed the NAVADMIN and said the commanding officer's endorsement is extremely important, especially the ranking of the individual among his/her peers. The endorsement should contain specifics about the individual's academic potential, commitment, leadership, service above self, and potential as a naval officer. Commanding officer comments should specify the primary option to which the individual is applying and address how the individual meets qualifications for that option. For junior Sailors with only schoolhouse evaluations, the CO must address this issue in his or her endorsement.

Application packages must be postmarked on or before the July 1 deadline date.

Selectees will be announced by NAVADMIN in the fall.

CSG-1 & JMSDF ships refine maritime skills while transiting Western Pacific

PHILIPPINE SEA - Carl Vinson Carrier Strike Group and the Japan Maritime Self-Defense Force (JMSDF) commenced an at-sea bilateral exercise in the Philippine Sea, April 23.

USS Carl Vinson (CVN 70), Ticonderoga-class guided-missile cruiser USS Lake Champlain (CG 57) and Arleigh Burke-class guided-missile destroyer USS Michael Murphy (DDG 112) were joined by JMSDF destroyers JS Samidare (DD-106) and JS Ashigara (DDG-178), both out of Sasebo, Japan, as the San Diego-based strike group continued its northern transit in the Western Pacific.

The routine exercise is designed to improve combined maritime response and defense capabilities, increase combined maneuvering proficiency, and ensure maritime forces remain ready to defend the region when called upon.

"We always look forward to operating with our Japanese partners," said Rear Adm. Jim Kilby, commander, Carrier Strike Group 1. "The relationship between the JMSDF and the United States is better than ever and it's in part thanks to these bilateral exercises."

The Carl Vinson Strike Group has conducted three previous bilateral exercises with the JMSDF since deploying earlier this year, most recently in March. The U.S. Navy conducts bilateral and multilateral exercises like this routinely as well as operations in the Western Pacific Ocean with the JMSDF throughout the year.

CSG-1 departed San Diego for a regularly scheduled deployment to the western Pacific, Jan. 5 and is comprised of Carl Vinson, CVW 2, Lake Champlain and embarked Destroyer Squadron (CDS) 1, consisting of USS Michael Murphy and USS Wayne E. Meyer (DDG 108).

Strike Group Sailors volunteer in Singapore

SOUTH CHINA SEA- Sailors assigned to the Carl Vinson Carrier Strike Group took part in community service events during a recent port visit to Singapore.

Sailors joined the Singapore community in donating their time at Child at 11th Street, Willing Hearts Food Kitchen and a food bank.

Events like these - Sailors interacting with the local community, sort pallets of food, do general chores, and serve food to the less fortunate - are examples of how Team Vinson Sailors are helping strengthen the relationships with partner and ally nations while visiting foreign ports.

3rd Fleet commander visits NHRC to discuss research and readiness

SAN DIEGO - The Naval Health Research Center welcomed the commander of 3rd Fleet, Vice Adm. Nora Tyson, on a visit April 17.

Tyson toured NHRC's Warfighter Performance Lab and sat down with some of the command's top scientists to learn more about the diverse research being done in support of the operational readiness and health of 3rd Fleet personnel.

One area of NHRC's research that impacts 3rd Fleet Sailors is environmental physiology. NHRC researchers developed the Automated Heat Stress Monitoring System, for engineering and galley workspaces. The system, which has been installed aboard numerous ships throughout the Navy, provides real-time, stay time guidance for watch stander rotations, ensuring the safety of shipboard personnel and saving man hours.

All the work our scientists do at the bench is driven by fleet requirements so that we can transition our findings to the battlespace and improve the health and readiness of our Sailors and Marines.

Additionally, scientists discussed ongoing research aimed at improving operational readiness to include:

* Examining different methods for evaluating sleep in operational environments
* Testing and evaluation of personal protective equipment on the biomechanics of marksmanship and walking
* Developing and validating an improved suicide screening tool to help providers more accurately identify service members at risk of suicide
* Conducting long-term epidemiological studies aimed at better understanding the impact of military service on health
* Surveilling for respiratory and enteric pathogens with the potential for degrading readiness
* Evaluating the effectiveness of a vaccine for norovirus, a highly contagious disease that causes vomiting and diarrhea

NHRC's commanding officer, Capt. Rita Simmons, discussed the importance of conducting research with practical application and real-world benefits to warfighters.

"Beyond conducting research in the lab, we take the science to the fleet," said Simmons. "Once we conduct studies in a laboratory simulated environment, we then go out into the field and collect data so we can determine if what we are seeing in the lab translates into the real environment. All the work our scientists do at the bench is driven by fleet requirements so that we can transition our findings to the battlespace and improve the health and readiness of our Sailors and Marines."

Simmons and Tyson also discussed NHRC's powerful medical informatics capabilities. Scientists collect, analyze, and interpret medical and administrative data in support of medical planning, casualty estimation, and medical intelligence.

USS America hosts Amphibious Squadron 3 leadership change ceremony

SAN DIEGO - Capt. Rome Ruiz relieved Capt. Homer R. Denius III as commander, Amphibious Squadron (CPR) 3 during a change of command ceremony held on USS America (LHA 6) while pierside at Naval Base San Diego, April 20.

Denius assumed command of CPR 3 in March 2015, and upon his departure will report to commander, Naval Surface Forces as the assistant chief of staff for maritime operations (N46).

Vice Adm. Nora W. Tyson, Commander, 3rd Fleet, served as the guest speaker for the event. Tyson presented Denius with a Legion of Merit as an end of tour award, recognizing him for his exceptional service to the Navy.

Denius joined CPR 3 while on deployment, embarking the then flagship USS Essex. He led the Essex Amphibious Ready Group (ARG) consisting of Essex (LHD 2), USS Rushmore (LSD 47) and Anchorage (LPD 23) through their Middle East and Western Pacific deployment. Upon return PHIBRON 3 embarked, the now flagship America. As CPR 3 aboard USS America, Denius was responsible for the successful participation of America and USS San Diego (LPD 22) during Rim of the Pacific (RIMPAC) 2016 exercise where the two ships demonstrated bilateral partnership while working with the Royal Australian Navy's landing helicopter dock ship HMAS Canberra.

At the start of 2017, Denius oversaw the execution of the early pre-deployment workup exercises and training evolutions for the America Amphibious Ready Group, including Rapid Response Planning Process (R2P2), Group Sail and PHIBRON MEU Integration (PMINT), ensuring the successful integration of the Navy-Marine Corps team and the ARG/MEU's readiness for deployment.

"Today, the ships deploying with the America ARG - America, San Diego and Pearl Harbor - are the most ready I have ever seen," said Denius. "They have produced nothing short of outstanding results."

Ruiz's most recent assignment was commanding officer of USS Cape Saint George (CG 71) homeported in San Diego. As a surface warfare officer he was commanding officer on board USS Shrike (MHC 62), USS Cardinal (MHC 60), and USS Higgins (DDG 76).

Active duty and families admitted free to San Diego Botanic Garden starting May 1

May 1, 2017 through Labor Day, Sept. 4, 2017

The San Diego Botanic Garden is proud to participate in the Blue Star Museum program, offering free admission to all active duty, National Guard and Reserve members of the U.S. military and their families (card carrier plus 5 immediate family members). As our way of saying 'thank you' to the brave men and women of the U.S. Military, the Garden will begin our Blue Star program on May 1st – more than 3 weeks ahead of other Blue Star Museum participants!

Military families are invited to come and enjoy our restful 37-acre botanic wonderland, featuring 29 uniquely themed gardens and 4,000 different plant species. Children of all ages will enjoy exploring our two children's gardens, Seeds of Wonder and our nationally-acclaimed Hamilton Children's Garden, featuring Toni's Tree House, as well as a Mountain Stream, Garden Music, Garden ABC Plant exploration areas and more. Blue Star participants are also extended free admission to attend special events held at the Garden during the summer months including Thursday Family Fun Nights each Thursday from June 1 – August 31; Fairy Festival on June 17; and Insect Fest on July 22 & 23.

Thanks to the generous support of a Garden member, the San Diego Botanic Garden is able to participate in the Blue Star Museum program, a partnership among the National Endowment for the Arts, Blue Star Families, the Department of Defense, and museums across the country.

Simply show one of the following active military I.D. cards at Admissions: • Army • Navy • Air Force • Marines • Coast Guard • National Guard and Reserve.

About San Diego Botanic Garden

The San Diego Botanic Garden is a beautiful urban retreat nestled on 37-acres in the midst of Encinitas.

3 ways to give back during National Volunteer month

(StatePoint) April, which is National Volunteer Month, is an excellent time to get involved in your community.

Here are three ways to give back, depending on how much time you can commit.

One Afternoon

If life is complicated, consider a short, one-time project, such as a local park clean-up or tree-planting event. Or, contact a local soup kitchen about pitching in at a meal.

A Weekly Commitment

Becoming a mentor or volunteer tutor offers a young person longer-term support and can improve his or her chances of success in school and beyond. However, be prepared to clear out some time in your schedule every week.

One Large Project

If you have a large block of downtime, but can't commit to an ongoing program, consider organizing a fundraiser. Whether it's a dance-off for heart health or a bake sale for veterans, there are plenty of ways to raise funds for an organization that matters to you.

Omarr's weekly Astrological forecast

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Caution keeps you out of harm's way. The wolf might knock on your door but you don't have to answer. You can make headway with career, financial concerns and business this week without neglecting family needs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Put out your feelers. You are like a spider with a web to spin. Creative ability requires the energy to begin something plus the inspiration to choose what to create. Let your ambitions guide you in the week ahead.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): In the week ahead you may learn a lesson about clinging to the past. You may find that your way is barred if you stubbornly refuse to cooperate or hold a grudge. Give a certain someone the benefit of the doubt.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be inspired by a special someone and adapt to a changing environment. You may be tempted to keep new contacts at arm's length, but in the week ahead should participate in group activities to widen your knowledge.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Carve your own niche. Warmth and charm aren't your only admirable traits. This isn't a good week to make a major change but it can be a good time to consolidate your ideas and to place emphasis on developing friendships.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have the choice. You can be generous and understanding or expect everyone to toe the line. In the week ahead you might be wise to focus on understanding why people do what they do rather than if they do it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Plan ahead for the future since that's where you will spend the rest of your life. Your judgment is better than usual this week so this is a good time to meet important new people through your job or to launch crucial projects.

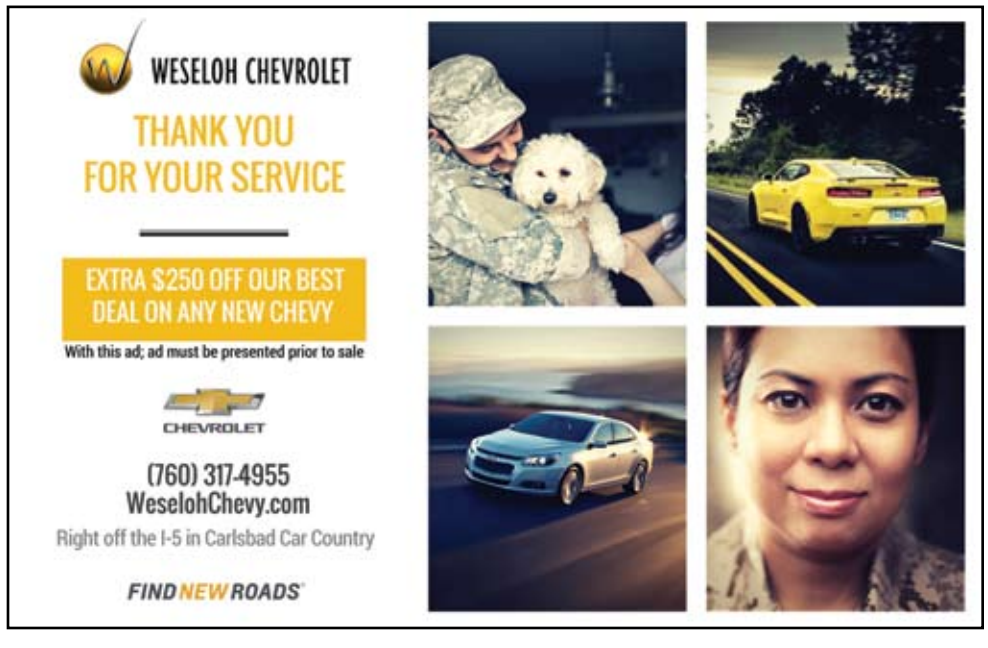
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You cannot change the cards you are dealt, just how you play the hand. You may be more interested in money saving ideas and career success than hugs and kisses in the week ahead. Do not take on new debts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Self-discipline can be a lifesaver. If you practice your craft and color within the lines you may end up becoming an expert. Develop a better understanding with loved ones and friends as this week unfolds.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't judge the book by its cover. The person who seems overly concerned with manners and conventions might be very nice once you delve past the surface. This week you can widen your circle of contacts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Expect the best and you can rest. An opportunity may arrive in the week ahead, giving you an acceptable way to escape from a costly situation. Check the answering service and email so you don't miss a crucial message.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): There is enough sympathy to go around. Nurture your relationships in the week to come. If you are contented with what you have your joint resources will thrive. Don't be discouraged by criticism or negativity.



30th annual International Summer Organ Festival

Monday, June 26 kicks off San Diego's International Summer Organ Festival, an inspiring line up of 10 concerts at the Spreckels Organ Pavilion in the heart of Balboa Park, each designed to demonstrate the fresh sound of 101-year-old Spreckels Organ, the largest outdoor pipe organ in the world.

Mondays, June 26 through Aug. 28, at 7:30 p.m., the Spreckels Organ Society presents a series of 10 concerts at the Spreckels Organ Pavilion in Balboa Park. All concerts are free to the public and open to all ages. Friendly, music-loving pets on leash are welcome. Light snacks, beverages and unique gifts are available on the pavilion grounds, and proceeds from donations benefit the nonprofit Spreckels Organ Society, working to preserve, program and promote the great Spreckels Organ as a world treasure for all people.

The Spreckels Organ and Pavilion

The Spreckels Organ in San Diego is the world's largest outdoor pipe organ. This first-of-its-kind organ designed to play for an outdoor audience has been amazing music-lovers since December 31, 1914, when from his presidential desk, Woodrow Wilson touched the telegraph key that set off fireworks and lit the Pavilion's 1,644 incandescent bulbs launching the Panama-California International Exposition.

Among the first of Balboa Park's cultural gems, thanks to the vision of brothers Adolph and John D. Spreckels, the Spreckels Organ is a pipe organ that can perform the full range of musical masterworks. Built by the Austin Organ Co. of Hartford, CT, the Spreckels Organ was deeded to the City on Jan. 1, 1915 at the opening of the Panama-California Exposition and has played steadily ever since. The organ is maintained by L. W. Blackinton and Associates, Dale Sorenson, Curator.

The Spreckels Organ is sponsored by the City of San Diego, The Department of Park and Recreation, and the nonprofit Spreckels Organ Society, assuring that this civic treasure entertains music lovers throughout the year.

Variety :George Lucas, Billie Lourd Honor 'One in a Billion' Carrie Fisher during 'Star Wars Celebration'

by Maane Khatchatourian

The opening panel of the "Star Wars Celebration" in Orlando recently promised "not-to-be-missed surprises" and, although no new movies were announced or trailers released, the 90-minute event did not disappoint.

George Lucas was the first to surprise the audience, and stayed on the stage as a number of familiar Star Wars faces rotated through to meet their maker. Then, about sixty minutes through, Lucas took a few minutes to pay special tribute to the late, great Carrie Fisher.

"She really is a modern woman. She was a princess. She was a senator. She was having to hold her own against these two big lugs," Lucas said, referring to Mark Hamill and Harrison Ford, who also made a surprise appearance.

"There really wasn't much of a question; there aren't very many people like her," he added. "They're one in a billion. She could hold her own through anything."

"She wore a dress through the whole thing, but she was the toughest one in the group," the creator of the "Star Wars" franchise said. "At the same time she was fun to be with. She'll always be the princess who took command and never backed down, never was in jeopardy. We'll all love her forever and ever."

Fisher's daughter, actress Billie Lourd, made her first public appearance at the event since Fisher died on Dec. 27. Her grandmother, Debbie Reynolds, died a day later after suffering a stroke.

The "Scream Queens" star, who recently joined the cast of "American Horror Story," wore a white Tom Ford dress in honor of her mother's iconic Princess Leia outfit.

"My mom, like Leia, was never afraid to speak her mind and say things that made people uncomfortable," Lourd told the audience of fans. "Nothing about her was a performance," she said.

The actress told the crowd that her mother had taught her three important things. First, a Leia monologue which she performed to laughs, then rapturous applause.

"Secondly, she taught that if life isn't funny, it's just true, and that is unacceptable," Lourd said. Again, the audience cheered. Finally, Lourd said that she learned from knowing her mother that "the most evolved person is seemingly a contradiction."

After the spoken tributes, a curtain opened at the end of the panel, revealing composer John Williams and a full orchestra playing a Star Wars medley, including "Princess Leia's Theme" and the iconic opening credits anthem.

Earlier in the panel Ford was chided about his latest flying incident when he accidentally landed on a taxiway in Orange County, sparking an investigation from the Federal Aviation Administration. "I can't believe we managed to keep it a secret considering you landed your plane on I-4," host Warwick Davis jabbed.

Ford chuckled and took it in stride. "It was a good landing," he replied.

Minutes later Lucas said that when he was auditioning Ford for the part of Han Solo, he asked if the actor could fly. After all, the movie involved intergalactic aircraft.

Ford told the audience that he replied, "Fly? Yeah. Land?" and then trailed off to laughter.

The event, a balance and laughs and tear-jerking moments, also featured video tribute to Fisher also screened at the panel and was later posted to Twitter.

by Jay Bobbin

STARTING THIS WEEK: "A DOG'S PURPOSE": The subject of much discussion while it was in theaters because of a video that allegedly showed animal abuse on the set - but ultimately determined to have been edited - this seriocomic story, directed by Lasse Hallstrom ("The Cider House Rules") and based on W. Bruce Cameron's same-named novel, traces the multiple lives of a canine that is reincarnated several times in the path to finding its true place in the world. Josh Gad voices the dog, with KJ Apa ("Riverdale") and Britt Robertson ("The Space Between Us") as the younger incarnations of two of the animal's owners. Dennis Quaid and Peggy Lipton play those characters in later years, with Juliet Rylance, Kirby Howell-Baptiste and Pooch Hall also in the human cast.  (PG: AS) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"THE COMEDIAN": Though some may deem this Robert De Niro's return to familiar turf, given his famous role in "The King of Comedy," this Taylor Hackford-directed comedy-drama casts him not as a hopeful but as a veteran comic who's struggling to stay relevant. After a run-in with an audience member, his sentence to perform community service introduces him to a woman (Leslie Mann) who might prove as much a salvation to him as he is to her. The impressive cast also includes Danny DeVito, Patti LuPone, Edie Falco, Harvey Keitel, Billy Crystal and Cloris Leachman. Among actual comedians who turn up in the film are Hannibal Buress, Jimmie Walker, Brett Butler, Richard Belzer and Gilbert Gottfried. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; AFI Fest panel session.  (R: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"GOLD": Matthew McConaughey certainly effects a much different physical look in this fact-inspired story from Stephen Gaghan (the Oscar-winning screenwriter of "Traffic") of a modern gold prospector who seeks his claim to riches in Indonesia. In tandem with a geologist (Edgar Ramirez, "The Girl on the Train"), he leaves his girlfriend (Bryce Dallas Howard) behind and sets off in search of wealth ... which the hunters actually find, but being able to hold onto it once they return to New York is another story. Corey Stoll ("House of Cards"), Bruce Greenwood and Stacy Leach also appear. DVD extras: three "making-of" documentaries; audio commentary by Gaghan; deleted scene.  (R: AS, N, P) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"RINGS": Naomi Watts isn't at the heart of this chapter, but the third thriller in the series that began with "The Ring" - and was adapted from a Japanese horror franchise - casts Matilda Lutz as one of the latest people affected by a lethal videotape (yes, a VCR still comes into play here). Johnny Galecki ("The Big Bang Theory"), Aimee Teegarden ("Friday Night Lights"), Alex Roe and Lizzie Brochere ("Falling Water") play others who come to regret having seen what they view on the tape, with Bonnie Morgan as the human manifestation of the terrifying imagery. Vincent D'Onforio also is featured.  (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"THE SALESMAN": The latest Oscar winner for best foreign language film, this Iranian-French co-production - which also earned honors at last year's Cannes Film Festival - focuses on young spouses who, while working on a staging of Arthur Miller's classic "Death of a Salesman," have to find new quarters in Tehran after their accommodations become uninhabitable. The house they move into has a checkered past that's destined to impact their lives in the present. Taraneh Alidoosti and Shahab Hosseini play the principal roles for writer-director Asghar Farhadi ("A Separation"). DVD extra: interview with Farhadi.  (PG-13: AS, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

AutoMatters & More: IndyCars at the 2017 Toyota Grand Prix of Long Beach

AutoMatters™ & More

by Jan Wagner

The Toyota Grand Prix of Long Beach attracts close to a quarter of a million people to this popular beach community in Southern California. In addition to the racing, visitors come here to enjoy the sun, the beach, the restaurants and food trucks, a family fun zone, the large Lifestyle Expo, concerts, the K1 Speed Go-Kart track and more, but for hard core race fans the big draw is multiple major racing series all in one scenic venue.

On the second weekend of April, the 43rd Toyota Grand Prix of Long Beach brought together the Verizon IndyCar Series, the Motegi Racing Super Drift Challenge – at night under the lights, the Bubba Burger Sports Car Grand Prix – part of the IMSA Weathertech Sportscar Championship, a Can-Am Challenge race for thousand horsepower vintage racecars from the 1960s and 1970s (replacing the departed Toyota Celebrity Challenge race), Robby Gordon's high flying SPEED Energy Stadium SUPER Trucks, the Pirelli World Challenge and the Verizon IndyCar Series. The weather, which had initially threatened light rain, turned out to be perfect for racing: moderate temperatures, calm and dry.

The IndyCar race has long been the weekend's signature event. Next to the Indy 500, this is the IndyCar race that the drivers most want to win. Each year the sounds of screaming IndyCars reverberate off of the concrete barriers that line the Shoreline Drive main straightaway and the rest of this temporary street circuit.

The current IndyCar chassis is the Dallara IR-12, powered by either a Chevrolet or a Honda 2.2-liter, twin-turbocharged V-6 engine. Each manufacturer has distinctive, unique, aerodynamic bodywork.

Pit stops include refueling and mandatory tire changes. In this year's race, some teams opted to make two pit stops and some chose three, to have fresher tires. The way things worked out, making only two stops turned out to be the better strategy.

Cars' performance is important but so is reliability, as Andretti Autosport was painfully reminded. All four team cars – one of which led many laps – uncharacteristically dropped out of contention, which was a first for that team. Perhaps worse yet, each faltered for different reasons. This is the same team that will be fielding a Honda-powered IndyCar for Formula 1 World Champion Fernando Alonso at this year's Indy 500 – a race that he will be contesting instead of racing in that same weekend's Formula 1 Monaco Grand Prix in his uncompetitive McLaren Honda. Andretti Autosport will need to sort out all of their problems soon.

On Saturday in the exciting qualification rounds, Helio Castroneves (driving the Chevrolet-powered, Auto Club of Southern California-sponsored car #3 for Team Penske) qualified on pole, but at the drop of the green flag he had a poor start and fell back several positions – a deficit from which he would not recover. He finished ninth.

Alexander Rossi before his engine blew

Canadian James Hinchcliffe qualified fourth. Through skillful driving, a sound two-stop pit strategy and some good luck he worked his way up past Scott Dixon (NTT Data Honda #9 for Chip Ganassi Racing) and Ryan Hunter-Reay (DHL Honda #4 for Andretti Autosport) to take the checkered flag. Dixon and Hunter-Reay had each led more laps than Hinchcliffe, but Dixon got caught out by his three-pit top strategy to finish second, and Hunter-Reay suffered some sort of electronics problem. He was scored in 17th place.

There were three caution periods. Favorite Will Power got together with Charlie Kimball just past the fountain, in turn four – a place where there was really no room to pass. That move took Kimball out of the race in the first lap. Power recovered and made it back to the pits for a new nose, but he was not competitive after that and finished in 13th.

James Hinchcliffe in tight racing

On lap 63 Alexander Rossi, who had been running strong and was in contention for a possible win, suffered a heartbreaking engine failure on the Shoreline Drive main straightaway.

On lap 80 (of the 85 scheduled), Ryan Hunter-Reay's Honda-powered car inexplicably came to a stop on course. It eventually restarted but his race was done.

Toyota and the Southern California Toyota dealers have served as title sponsor of this "party at the beach" for many years. Since 1989, in conjunction with the Grand Prix, Toyota has donated over $2.4 million to Racing for Kids, a national organization that benefits children's hospitals throughout the U.S.

"IAM NOT YOUR NEGRO": A recent Oscar nominee for best documentary feature, filmmaker Raoul Peck's project inspired by the unfinished James Baldwin book "Remember This House" (and narrated by Samuel L. Jackson) encompasses several tragedies ... the assassinations of civil-rights leaders Medgar Evers, Malcolm X and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The film draws heavily from Baldwin's words in linking the late activists' efforts to the era of the Black Lives Matter movement, also taking ethnic representation in modern Hollywood into consideration. The many notables appearing in archival footage (in addition to Baldwin himself) range from Sidney Poitier and Robert F. Kennedy to Ray Charles and Bob Dylan. * (PG-13: AS, N, P, V) (Also on On Demand)

Love is a four legged word

Dogs can't do two things at the same time, either

by Cathy M. Rosenthal

Dear Cathy,

We have a wonderful Beagle/mix who is almost 10 years old. We are constantly amazed by Tanner's intelligence and loving nature, but he has one behavior that we cannot seem to control. He barks at everyone who walks by our house, whether or not they are walking a dog, and everyone who comes to our door. If they come in, he wags his tail and loves them, so it's not that he is ferocious. He's just really loud. Is there anything we can do to curb this behavior? - Helaine Yancey, Charlotte, N.C.

Dear Helaine,

Barking is a normal behavior that dogs do to alert people to changes in their environment, and in your dog's mind, he has saved your life a thousand times. I don't think it's a behavior you should stop altogether, but one that you simply need some control over when you know there is no threat to you or your property.

There is a saying that most people can't chew gum and walk at the same time. The same can be said of dogs, except they usually can't bark and run at the same time - or bark and sit or bark and do a trick. Think about it; when you call your dog into the house to get him to stop barking, he stops barking the moment he turns and run toward you. Mission accomplished.

Use these same tactics in the house. When your dog starts barking at the window, shake a can of coins to interrupt the behavior and get his attention, then say, "Tanner stop" followed by a recall command like "Tanner here." The second command is needed, so he learns he is being rewarded for the recall and not for barking. Begin this training by standing a few feet away from him. Over time, you should be able to say, "Tanner here" from almost anywhere in the house and he will come running to you.

As for the door barking, ask a friend to help you train Tanner. Have your friend stand outside and ring the bell. When Tanner barks at the bell, say, "Tanner, thank you," and then give the command "Tanner sit." Tanner will have trouble maintaining his barking if he is sitting. Reward him for sitting and being quiet, then open the door and let your friend in. If he stands or barks, have your friend step back out and ask him to sit again.

Repeat this process at least 10 times each session until your intelligent boy learns that after his initial alert, you can handle things from that point on. You may need to keep him on a leash initially to keep him from jumping on people and barking. That is something dogs can do at the same time.

Dear Cathy,

My husband shared your column about the owner of a Dachshund and Dachshund mix whose dogs peed in the house within a half-hour of being brought in from outside. I reminded him that our Dachshund pees when his routine is upset, like when we pet-sit our children's dogs or go away on a vacation. Any suggestions on how we can combat this? - Joy Cruess, Columbia, Md.

Dear Joy,

It's not uncommon for dogs to relieve themselves in inappropriate places when they are anxious and stressed. Assuming he is neutered (since not being neutered can lead to inappropriate elimination, as well), he may be peeing to gain some control over the changes in his environment, which happens when you leave or when your children's dogs come to visit.

Dogs also pee to communicate to other dogs. He may be peeing to let the visiting dogs know everything in the house belongs to him, which can be a more difficult problem to address.

Maintain your dog's regular feeding, sleeping and play routines when you leave or company comes over, and add a few more potty breaks to his schedule. Most dogs want to urinate after eating, sleeping or drinking water, so treat your dog like a puppy in training when his routine is altered.

Your dog may also benefit from some anti-anxiety treatments during times of stress or change, including using a plug-in pheromone, which mimics a mother's dog smell and calms some dogs down; putting an anxiety wrap on your dog - they aren't just used for storms; or talking to your veterinarian about the temporary use of anti-anxiety medications to help your dog when his routine is interrupted.
